

CONTRACT SIGNED REAPPRAISAL ASSURED

Wilmington's Board of Assessors have announced the signing of a contract with the firm of Cole-Layer-Trumble, for a complete re-evaluation of Wilmington's taxable property.

Bids were received from four different companies. According to the Board, a study was made of each firm, regarding the cost, the method that would be used in arriving at a fair market value, and the time necessary to do a complete job, so that all property owners would be paying only a fair a just portion of the taxes.

Cole-Layer-Trumble was chosen because the Assessors had confidence in the firm, as reliable appraisers with experience in not only Massachusetts, but also in Wilmington, it being the firm which did the last re-evaluation in Wilmington, in 1955. This assures the people, the Assessors said, that the firm is familiar with the town, and with the records that are being used for tax purposes.

The contract calls for a completion of the work in September 1966, so that the tax bills may be mailed on October 1, 1966.

POSTMASTER HENRY PORTER: Is proud of the fact that all mail, even during the Christmas rush, is protected in the Wilmington Post Office. Two metal mail boxes have been provided, where many post offices have cardboard boxes, for the extra rush of mail at this season.

Dick Harding will study in Palestine

The Reverend Richard E. Harding, former pastor of the Wilmington Methodist Church, has been awarded the Stowell Holy Land Study-Travel scholarship for the year 1966. The announcement was made by the Board of Trustees of the New England Annual Conference of the Methodist Church.

Rev. Harding will combine his Holy Land program with the Study

Travel seminar to Africa to study the social economic, political, artistic, and ideological currents shaping Africa with attention to University campuses in 12 African countries.

He had been the pastor of the Wilmington Methodist Church from 6 to 12 years ago and presently is pastor of Wesley Methodist Church in Amherst and Director of the Wesley Foundation. In Amherst, he is active in the local community as well as the Foundation program.

BATTERIES STOLEN

Two batteries, each worth about $40, were stolen from a bulldozer belonging to Alex Arseneault of Shaw sheen Avenue, during the past week. The bulldozer was being used to prepare the ground area for the new Wilmington Ford sales room and yard, located across from the Wilmington Plaza.

Town Hall closed Friday

The Town Hall Offices will be closed all day Friday, since all the employees prefer Friday rather than Monday off and a very minimal amount of official business would be conducted the day before Christmas. The Town employees, according to Section 3-16.3 of the 'Personnel Regulations' have the choice of taking the day before or following a legal holiday when the holiday falls on a week-end.

Town Hall Offices will be open the Friday before and the Monday after New Year's Day.

Wilmington has another Railroad Depot

Wilmington, in the past week, acquired another railroad depot. The old Woburn Depot, which stood for many years in that city, for the use of thousands of passengers for the Boston & Maine RR, was torn down last week, and the bricks and other debris is now in the Wilmington town dump.

EXHIBIT OF COUNTERFEIT MONEY: At the Mechanics Savings Bank on Main Street, is drawing the attention of patrons.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smalley of Auburn Avenue guessed right, and on a fifty dollar bill!

The depot was torn down last week to make room for a new County Courthouse, and the problem of disposing of the bricks was solved by Rep. Fred F. Cain and Town Manager Richard Henneberger.

The agreement allows the County to dump the bricks, which constitute a 'solid' fill, in the town dump. And that's where the old depot is today.

THE READING OF THE WARRANT

The casual observer of the New England Town Meeting could make a case, should he care to, of two town meetings recently held - one in Reading, and one in Wilmington.

Both towns recently voted new Building By Laws. But at that point any similarity ceases to exist.

Wilmington still follows the old Colonial rule of having the Constable post the Warrant for the Town Meeting. The Warrant, as every voter is presumed to know, is the Subject Matter which can be discussed during the Town Meeting - and nothing else. It is posted in five Public Places, including the Fire Station, and then the Constable certifies to the Town Clerk that this has been done.

In some cases, at least, voters who want to know what that Subject Matter is must troop to one of those five public places, and read the Warrant. If the voter should choose to make the Fire Station the place where he reads the warrant he can have the additional pleasure of exchanging the time of day with the Brave Fire Laddies.

Then he knows everything, from A to Z.

It is so much taken for granted, in Wilmington, that the voter knows the warrant from A to Z that in the ordinary course of a town meeting finds someone, in the first two minutes, moving that 'further reading' of the warrant be dispensed with.

When Wilmington voted its new Building By Laws, a few weeks ago, there were no copies of the proposed by law really available to the voters. There were copies available, yes, including two in the public library, and there had been a public hearing, at which the law had been read, but on the Town Meeting floor there were many voters who did not know the subject from A to Z.

The result was that the new By Law almost did not get voted. It was only when a citizen got up and pleaded that the voters have some 'faith' in the By Law Committee that the law was voted.

In Reading, as in practically every town in this Commonwealth with the exception of Wilmington, the proposed by law, as a part of the Warrant for the Town Meeting, had been published in the local paper. This was done by the town. The publisher was not asked to contribute the publishing as a public service.

The Selectmen paid for it, and the voters of Reading did not have to go down to the Fire Station, and exchange pleasantries with the Reading Fire

Laddies, while they studied their subject from A to Z.

It may be presumed, as the result of this publication, that every voter of Reading had seen a copy of the proposed by law, when he or she went to that Town Meeting.

Furthermore, there was no motion to dispense with 'further reading' of the warrant.

The Town Counsel ruled that the proposed by law had to be read, in full, before the voters could act on it.

For 188 minutes of that Town Meeting, Selectmen and others took their turns in reading out every word on the new law.

And the voters, who presumably had been warned, played bridge, or addressed Christmas Cards during those three hours.

After which, with no 'faith' being needed, the voters of Reading enacted their new Building By Law.

HEIGH HO FOR THAT XMAS SPIRIT?

The Wilmington Police Department Police Log, for the past week or so, makes interesting reading.

Not that there has been any great crime in the town, but rather the way in that the Christmas Spirit is being observed.

There are, for instance, complaints of people who had visited one of the more prominent shopping centers in town. While they were in a store, making purchases, light fingered people robbed them of the goodies they had purchased in other stores and had left in their cars.

That of course, is not necessarily an Act of Christmas. Light fingered gentry will steal groceries, or clothing, or anything left in a car at any time of the year.

But there is another series of complaints which are distinctly affiliated with that Xmas Spirit, even though in reverse.

People, it seems, are stealing light bulbs - those red and green and blue things that are put into trees and shrubbery in front of the various homes in town, signifying the Advent, or the Spirit of Commerce, or whatever it is that makes up the modern Christmas Holiday.

There have been seven instances, in the past week or so, not including the Herbert Barrows tree on the Common, which is fair game for anyone.

148 Christmas Light bulbs have been stolen, from six different homes, plus an unspecified number from a home on Hobson Avenue.

Perhaps the worst instance is that of the Ward family, who live at 397 Middlesex Avenue. During several evenings they have lost a total of 65 bulbs, 48, costing 12 cents a piece, disappeared during one night.

Maybe the Wilmington Gendarmes should have a Christmas Home, for Zip, the Police Dog, on the Ward's front lawn.

Zip has never heard about the Xmas Spirit.

TOWN NOTES

Frozen Bottom

Silver Lake is frozen, as the result of the near zero temperatures of Sunday and Monday nights.

As a matter of record it was frozen over on Sunday morning, but that's not the subject of these paragraphs.

The point is that this year, for perhaps the first time since about 1720, land that is at the bottom of Silver Lake is frozen.

Back in those days, when the Thompson family built the house that is now 2 Main Street, they also constructed a mill on Lubbers Brook, just above where it crosses under Glen Road.

And to be certain that there would be enough water for their mill, a ditch was dug to Sandy Pond, as it was then called.

And an embankment was put up on the then exit side of Sandy Pond, to make the water level higher. That embankment is now Main St., in front of the Silver Lake Pharmacy, and to Glen Road.

And, ever since then, Silver Lake (or, if you will, Sandy Pond) has had a higher water level.

Until this year, when, at the end (we hope) of a four year drought, the water level is lower than it has been for about 240 years or more.

The bottom of the lake, around the edges, is now frozen solid. Take a good look folks - it may not occur again for another 240 years or so.

Expensive

To own a horse isn't exactly the cheapest way of having fun, as many of our townspeople can testify, but to own a dead horse --

Tanny, the horse which was the victim of the accident on Shaw-shen Avenue, last week, was the property of the Yale family on Boutwell Street.

We weren't talking with the Yale family about the costs, but we heard of a couple of quotations about getting rid of the body. One that was quoted was $70.

Gone are the days, it seems, when the body of a dead horse was just hauled out into a field and buried.

But - in case you are worrying for the Yale family - we are told that a friend of theirs was able to dispose of Tanny without cost to the Yale family.

Rubber

Peter Simard, 19 year old Aldrich Road boy, is learning about the business of earning a living.

A couple of weeks ago this paper related how Peter, a Co-Op student at Northeastern University, accidentally walked into a hole filled with water, while surveying near the old airport, in West Wilmington.

Peter had another adventure last week.

Letters

Dear Larz,

Your so-called editorial, page 2, column 2, of your December 9, 1965 Town Crier attempts to injure the reputation of a professional who has performed honorably and well for the Town of Wilmington. I do not know why you indicated that Mr. McNiff's face was livid or white etc. Possibly because you were not present, hence you can write more fluently when you do not need to heed facts.

Your inference that Mr. McNiff suggested to the architect, the Library Trustees, and the Permanent Building Committee a building larger than he could recommend for the Town of Wilmington is untrue. Mr. McNiff conferred with Mr. Guarino, the architect, and his staff primarily to indicate the lay-out most conducive to efficient library operation. The first size of the sketch was never redesigned from 28,000 to 21,000 or some other dimension because both the architect and the consultant (when they asked the Board of Library Trustees for their suggestions as to size), rightly understood that the Library Trustees wanted that larger dimension (28,000 sq. ft.).

It is also a fact that before the Permanent Building Committee proceeded to direct the architect for preliminary plans and sketches with cost estimates sufficient in detail to be presented to a Town Meeting that Committee, PBC, asked each member present to sign a copy of the plans indicating that the signers approve the size and the lay-out for a library for the Town.

I, for one, knew what I was signing. I was signing to indicate that the suggestions of both the architect and the consultant were in my opinion what I would be glad to recommend to the Town.

In the interest of preserving any person's good name, honor and reputation, I would suggest that you retract your inaccurate statement and apologize.

You may publish or not, as you wish, this letter. It is only in the interest of preserving the professional reputations of men who I found enjoyable to work with that I ask you to do this.

I have assumed that you will.

Very truly yours,
Ralph M. Kelmon
156 Middlesex Avenue

Ralph Kelmon, Chairman of the Board of Library Trustees, is one of the finest gentlemen in Wilmington, and the Town Crier erred, in many ways, as he has indicated.

There was no intention to injure the reputation of Mr. McNiff, and a formal apology is hereby tendered that gentleman.

Dear Larz:

May we have a little space in your column to talk about a railroad station - not yours, but ours. We are speaking of the Wilmington Railroad Depot, which is owned by Depot Real Estate.

The waiting room, and the ticket agent's office, are supplied to the railroad by Depot Realty free of charge, for the benefit of the people who use the railroad.

In order for us to do this, for the people of Wilmington, we must still have some income.

We supply warm, dry, comfort for the people waiting for their trains. We ask only that people who park their cars in our yard pay for the parking facilities.

We have a sign posted, and we work on the honor system.

During the Christmas season, we have found, quite a few people are taking advantage of the parking area without paying for it. Our regular patrons are very conscientious.

They understand that the heat, light, cleaning, plowing and taxes are quite costly to us.

We would appreciate the co-operation of the rest of the town folk, and we trust that it will be forthcoming, now that they understand.

A Merry Christmas to Everyone

Dear Mr. Boodakian:

I just had to write this letter to you to tell you how much my husband has raved about all of the wonderful homes he has visited in your area.

Every year, for the past 25 or so years, he has no more than set foot in the front door after making his trip through all of those wonderful New England towns and he starts in about the beautiful Oriental rugs he has seen.

He not only describes the beautiful colors and patterns, he has to pick each one of the rugs up and check the underside to see where it was made and most importantly, who sold the rug. Well, you've won his popularity poll more times than I would wish to recollect.

So, if it's not too much trouble, would you be kind enough to send me some samples before Christmas, so at least I can converse with him for the first hour or so after he's home.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Santa Claus

MORE TOWN NOTES (From Page Two)

check, from the town, a week ago yesterday, for his services as a Junior Engineer, snapped it.

Perhaps he was a little jubilant. He held it in his two hands, and gave it a snap.

It wasn't made of rubber, he then learned.

It was made of paper — and it tore into two pieces, right in his hands!

Depot Motif

The Depot Realty, which owns the old Wilmington RR Station, could of course be expected to come up with an old train, on their Christmas Cards, and that's what they did. It features a locomotive circa 1850, and of course people in the costume of that time, together with a couple of faithful horses.

But the station before which the train is stopped was never seen in Wilmington, Mass. It is straight out of the New York Central, with the particular type of 'gingerbread' used as decorations.

TM's Card

The Town Manager, Dick Henneberger, sent Christmas cards to all the town employees, and you don't have to open up the card and look at the inside pages to guess who it is from.

For, on the front of the Xmas Card is a little cut-out Volkswagen, and, like Henneberger's, it is red in color.

Rumor

Wilmington readers of the Boston papers, last week, learned that Wilmington's share of the support for the MBTA will be one cent on the 1966 tax rate.

Which may be interesting.

But more interesting was a rumor which was printed in the Reading Chronicle.

That paper reported that a man, whose name they could not obtain, but who worked for the MBTA, had been in Reading in the past few days, investigating a possibility of extending MBTA service through Reading, and into Wilmington — instead of building the new terminal, planned for somewhere near the Reading-Wakefield line.
